Girl Determined

Girls at the forefront of change in Burma.
What’s the situation in Burma?
Burma (Myanmar)

- Population: 55-60 million
- Southeast Asia – borders Thailand, China, India and Laos
- High rate of poverty
- 70% work in Agriculture
- Majority Buddhist
- Diverse ethnic groups
- Weak rule of law and history of human rights abuses
Repressive military rule from 1962-2011

- Neglect of education and health systems
- Repress civil society
- Gross economic mismanagement
- Strict media censorship

149 out of 187 on UN Human Development Index

- Least developed country in SE Asia
What is Girl Determined?

Girl Determined is a Burma-based leadership project designed to facilitate girls’ recognition of their personal and group potential.

Girl Determined is sparking a movement of girls with leadership skills to advocate for their own rights and a future that does not re-create the risks they now face.
What are we achieving?

Adolescent girls avoid the prevalent risks of:
- School drop-out
- Trafficking
- Dangerous Labor
- Domestic and other forms of violence
- Early marriage and pregnancy

To address MDG # 3:
Promote gender equality and empower women
How do we do this?

Provide trained group leaders and develop relevant curriculum to reach 1000 girls who are:

- aged 12-17
- living in poor urban outskirts and rural communities in Burma (Myanmar)
- of mixed ethnic and religious backgrounds
What will Dining for Women’s support do?

Expand our Colorful Girls Circles program.
What is Colorful Girls Circles?

- Girl Determined’s core program
- Weekly, after school peer processing group
- Structured, 2-year, girl-centered, strengths-based curriculum to develop the whole girl
- Circles are limited to fifteen girls and a trained facilitator
- Evaluation demonstrates high impact
- Fosters individual transformation
What is the impact of Colorful Girls Circles?
1. Speaking out about domestic violence and other forms of harassment.

Girls learn to organize against violence in their communities – an issue they commonly face.

Girls have a place where they can share their experiences, diminishing shame and building personal strength.
2. Staying in School

Drop-out rates in Burma are high, especially for poor girls.

Colorful Girls Circles make school more fun.

Girls learn coping skills for times of stress.

Colorful Girls Circles curriculum helps girls with all different learning styles to build critical thinking skills.
3. Avoiding Dangerous Child Labor & Trafficking

Burma has a serious child labor problem.

Girls in school are less likely to work in dangerous conditions such as factory and sex work.

Girls learn negotiating skills to advocate for themselves when parents or community members encourage them to work in exploitative conditions.
4. Raising their Voices

Colorful Girls Circles helps girls to understand that their experiences and opinions matter.

Girls learn to be confident when speaking to adults.

Girls learn critical self-awareness so they know what is comfortable and uncomfortable for them.

Girls learn their rights.
“I dare to walk. I dare to talk!”

Organizational History

Girl Determined was founded in 2008 by a local Myanmar woman and several teenage girl in her community.

While giving the girls free tutoring, they told her of their struggles at home, in school, in their communities and churches – violence, pressure to drop out of school, lack of recognition for their talents, harsh restrictions on their movement and associations.

Began as a safe place to share experiences and find non-judgmental support and grown to reach 1000 girls with safe spaces and structured programs that have real impacts.
